

THE NORTHWEST'S FINEST ORGANICALLY GROWN

MUSTARD SEED FARM

David & Nancy Brown
St. Paul, Oregon

The Browns began farming in 1964. The name Mustard Seed Farm is derived from a Christian idea that faith is like a grain of mustard — it starts small but grows larger as one's trust in God strengthens. With strong values and a strong faith in organic agriculture, the Brown family has increased their acreage and focused on viable crops that grow well in the Northwest. They are an excellent example of small-scale, diverse organic agriculture at its best! Giving back to the community is an important part of their values. For over 25 years, Farmer Brown has run a vibrant Community Garden Program. Community members lend their green thumbs in exchange for produce. They also donate produce to food bank and free meal programs — even a few giant pumpkins are donated to local schools and churches each year.

Giant Pumpkin Capital of the World

Visit the farm in September and the first thing you'll notice are the thousands of GIANT pumpkins in the fields, each weighing about 100 lb. "You can't look at a giant pumpkin without smiling!" – Nancy Brown.
