

THE NORTHWEST'S FINEST ORGANICALLY GROWN

SIRI & SON FARMS

Joe & Jim Siri
Clackamas, Oregon

Siri & Son Farms is a fourth generation family operation that began in the 1950s. Since emigrating from Italy, the Siri family has always practiced a more natural form of farming, relying on cover crops, compost, crop rotations, and drip irrigation. Now Jim and his son Joe have taken over production. After graduating from Oregon State University, Joe brought his passion for organic agriculture to the fields, combining new and traditional techniques to their operation with organic certification. With revitalized energy, they've expanded their acreage and are recognized in the Northwest marketplace for their quality produce.

SIRIously Local. SIRIously Organic.

Growing diversity and scale has been a challenging but rewarding experience. Their high quality crops thrive in Oregon's climate. Because of their close proximity to Portland's metro area, their produce often reaches the shelf shortly after harvest.

Familial Affair

Joe and his wife, Alma, are helping raise and nurture the 5th generation of Siri growers and plan to teach them techniques the Siri family has "perfected over generations."
